The oldest denominational archives in the United States, PHS uses innovative technology to serve historians, educators, and faith communities. Our professional staff helps congregations and mid councils find inspiration in their heritage, scholars deepen knowledge of the humanities, and genealogists explore family connections. Through PHS, and the 500 years of history at our Philadelphia location, discover the many ways Presbyterians have changed the world.

Make a financial gift and sustain PHS as an eminent resource for honoring, celebrating, and preserving the heritage of American Presbyterians. Supporters receive benefits, including those featured below.

Do you have personal papers, rare publications, or other materials that speak to the American Presbyterian experience? Contact PHS to find out if your items are a good fit for our collections.

PRESBYTERIAN Historical Society

To give to the Presbyterian Historical Society call 215-928-3889 or visit us online at www.history.pcusa.org/give

As the national archives of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Presbyterian Historical Society collects, preserves, and shares stories of the American Presbyterian experience.
PHS publishes articles, exhibits, interactive features, and short films. Classes, congregations, and individuals can use these resources to understand the religious history of the United States and the diverse ways Presbyterians have carried out their calling in the world.

Find out more www.history.pcusa.org/history-online

Visit www.history.pcusa.org to find out the many ways we support church ministries, Presbyterians, researchers, and historians.

Ask our reference team for help with your research question: 215-627-1852 or refdesk@history.pcusa.org.

Sign up at www.history.pcusa.org/enews to receive monthly articles, news, and event notices.

Visit us at 425 Lombard Street, Philadelphia, PA, 19147. Monday through Friday, 8:30am–4:30pm, excluding holidays and other closings.

PHS services and resources assist thousands each year. From fielding questions about family histories and overseas missionaries to preserving and digitizing vital church records, PHS is here to serve you.

Find out more www.history.pcusa.org/services

The rare publications and unique media, personal papers, and church records held in the national archives capture diverse and poignant stories. Social movements, theological trends, medical and educational advances—there’s so much to learn at PHS.

Find out more www.history.pcusa.org/collections

A HISTORIC MISSION

World-Class Collections to Discover

TOOLS FOR EXPLORING THE PAST

Contact PHS

Tools for exploring the past

- Calvin online catalog: records, publications, and processed personal papers
- Pearl digital archives: virtual access to thousands of images, manuscripts, and multimedia
- Guides and finding aids to thousands of cubic feet of archival holdings
- Domestic and international minister and missionary records
- Church records from 50 states and the District of Columbia
- Hall’s online Index of American Presbyterian Congregations
- Interfaith, nondenominational, and ecumenical records
- Rare book collection dating back to 15th century

Collection, preservation, and management of historic records
- Biographical research services about ministers and missionaries
- Baton, maps, and membership atlases
- Heritage Preservation Index: sites for small churches
- Research Fellowships for emerging scholars
- Organization services for churches and councils
- Genealogy research and family history
- Church and bell tower anniversary celebration assistance
- Reference assistance from PHS archivists

Visit www.history.pcusa.org to find out the many ways we support church ministries, Presbyterians, researchers, and historians.

Ask our reference team for help with your research question: 215-627-1852 or refdesk@history.pcusa.org.

Sign up at www.history.pcusa.org/enews to receive monthly articles, news, and event notices.

Visit us at 425 Lombard Street, Philadelphia, PA, 19147. Monday through Friday, 8:30am–4:30pm, excluding holidays and other closings.

A historic mission

The rare publications and unique media, personal papers, and church records held in the national archives capture diverse and poignant stories. Social movements, theological trends, medical and educational advances—there’s so much to learn at PHS.

Find out more www.history.pcusa.org/collections

Visit www.history.pcusa.org to find out the many ways we support church ministries, Presbyterians, researchers, and historians.

Ask our reference team for help with your research question: 215-627-1852 or refdesk@history.pcusa.org.

Sign up at www.history.pcusa.org/enews to receive monthly articles, news, and event notices.

Visit us at 425 Lombard Street, Philadelphia, PA, 19147. Monday through Friday, 8:30am–4:30pm, excluding holidays and other closings.

All images in this brochure are reproduced from the PHS collections. For more information visit www.history.pcusa.org/brochure.